

Acknowledgements

Constellations has successfully come out for its second issue this year. The support from the student body has continued to be impressive and I am pleased that it will continue for years to come. Dr. Jeremy Caradonna continues to be the support and liaison for the journal editors and the department. His confidence in Constellations continues to be invaluable to the project. The peer reviewers have all been crucial to the editing process; their interest in the journal is inspiring! Kyle Miller, our formatter extraordinaire has pulled through for Emily and I again this issue. Emily Larocque, the Assistant Editor should be acknowledged for giving up so much of her time, especially during term-paper season for the journal—that's dedication! I also want to thank the copy-editors, Sharon Rauser, Stephen Williams, Adam Persi, and Ben Ettinger for their eagle eyes and commitment to Constellations. Melanie Marvin also deserves to be acknowledged for her technological know-how and ensuring that Constellations goes online easily. Last of all, but most importantly, you, as the Reader needs to be thanked for reading, thinking about, and enjoying the writings that the University of Alberta students have to offer.

Christina Williamson

Editor of Constellations