Bryn Evans is a registered Social Worker in Calgary, Alberta, currently in the role of Trauma and Triage Counselor at the Carewest Operational Stress Injury Clinic, providing trauma treatment for the Canadian Armed Forces and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. He received his Bachelor of Social Work from the University of Calgary, and Master of Arts (Integrated Studies, majoring in Equity Theory) from Athabasca University. He is currently completing a Master of Social Work (clinical) at the University of Calgary. He also serves as co-chair of the Ethics Committee in Mental Health and Addictions for Alberta Health Services. Past and current research interests include gender and self-efficacy among care-workers, as well as clinical ethics related to risk management and ambivalence.

Valerie Webber is a PhD Candidate in Community Health & Humanities at Memorial University of Newfoundland and Labrador. She is active in sex worker communities and interested in how notions of 'health' influence discourses and experiences of sexuality, especially in regards to respectability politics. Her current research deals with the framing of pornography production and consumption as a 'public health crisis.'
