

Acknowledgements

Jonathan Hart, editor of the Canadian Review of Comparative Literature, first proposed that the essays on cultural mediation presented at the Canadian Comparative Literature Association meetings become the nucleus of a special issue of the journal; he also initiated the joint release of The Politics of Cultural Mediation as a book in the Library of the Canadian Review of Comparative Literature/Revue Canadienne de Littérature Comparée, co-published by the University of Alberta Press. Without his initiative and encouragement, this volume would not have been possible. While it was Jonathan Hart who made The Politics of Cultural Mediation possible, it was the contributors themselves who made it a reality: they agreed to revise and expand their papers for the volume; they patiently responded to our many questions; and they offered us their advice and encouragement throughout this project. A special thanks to Irene Gammel and Klaus Martens who organized the CCLA sessions and who thus gave The Politics of Cultural Mediation its original shape, and to Paul Morris for permitting us to include his translation of Randarabesken zu Oscar Wilde in the volume. We are indebted to Irene Sywenky, CRCL's editorial consultant, for her assistance. Many people at The University of Alberta Press have contributed to this project, especially Alan Brownoff and Mary Mahoney-Robson. We also wish to acknowledge the work of two anonymous assessors chosen by the Canadian Review of Comparative Literature to assess the manuscript; we benefited from their careful scrutiny.

For granting permission to use copyright material, we would like to thank: the Archives of Manitoba; the Bildarchiv Foto Marburg, Germany; the Cottbus Stadtarchiv; the Cottbus Theaterarchiv; the Estate of Alexander Archipenko; the Estate of Man Ray; A. Leonard Grove; Mark Kelman; the Museum of Modern Art, New York; Frances M. Naumann; the Philadelphia Museum of Art; the Schiller Nationalmuseum, Deutsches Literaturarchiv, Germany; the Tel Aviv Museum of Art; and the University of Maryland at College Park Libraries. The cover and title page photograph of Baroness Elsa was taken from The Little Review (Sept.-Dec. 1920) and used with permission. A special thank you to Jeannine Green at Bruce Peel Special Collections, University of Alberta, for locating and lending it to the Press. Every attempt has been made, where appropriate, to trace the copyright holders of material reproduced in The Politics of Cultural Mediation; the editors and publishers would be pleased to hear from any interested parties.
