

Contributors

Leslie Holmes is a MA student at the University of Alberta. Her research involves early 20th century Western Canada with a focus on ethnic immigrants and health/medicine issues. Leslie may be contacted at laholmes@ualberta.ca

Angela Ranson is a Masters student at Dalhousie University. Her research focuses on the English Reformation and the reign of the Tudors, 1485-1603.

| 204

Vojin Majstorović is a second-year Ph.D. student at the University of Toronto. His research focuses on the Red Army in southeastern Europe. Vojin may be reached at vojin.majstorovic@utoronto.ca

Robert P. Stephan is a PhD student in classical archaeology at Stanford University. His primary research focuses on economic growth in the Roman world, and he maintains an interest in spatial analytic, quantitative, and macrohistorical methodologies. Rob may be contacted at rstephan@stanford.edu

Megan J. Highet is a Provisional PhD Candidate in the department of Anthropology at the University of Alberta. Her research interests include health in boomtown communities, infectious disease in urban populations, biomedical anthropology and the social history of medicine with a focus on North American populations. Megan may be contacted at meganhighet@yahoo.ca

Caroline Lieffers is a MA student in History at the University of Alberta. Her focus is nineteenth-century British social history, and her thesis is entitled "Science, Technology, and Management in the Middle-Class English Home, c. 1800-1880." She can be contacted at caroline.lieffers@ualberta.ca.

Marla Epp has a MA in French literature from the Department of Modern Languages and Cultural Studies at the University of Alberta. Her research focuses on women's lives and writing in twentieth-century France, particularly during the Second World War. She can be contacted at mrepp@ualberta.ca.

Christiane Grieb recently finished her MA in German History. She studies Legal History with a focus on war crimes and human rights as well as on Modern German History. She is currently affiliated with the Reverberation of War Project chaired at the University College London, UK. In fall 2010, she will join the project full-time and commence her PhD in German History with the Chair of the project, Dr. Mary Fulbrook. She can be contacted at cgrieb_2000@yahoo.com.

| 205

Rylan Kafara is a MA student in the Department of History and Classics at the University of Alberta. His field of study is Cold War American History and his thesis research is on the political implications of the underground music milieu in the United States from the late 1970s to the early 1990s. Rylan can be reached at rkafara@ualberta.ca